The NFO Farm Strike

Those who remember the events of 1933 will regret that the Midwest farmers have decided to use the strike as a means of bargaining for better prices. In 1933, Walter Singler, then of Shiocton, led the Wisconsin dairy farmers in the milk strike as a protest against low prices. That strike was not only a failure as an effort to increase milk prices but it cost the farmers their milk income for a long period of time and it brought violence to Wisconsin's highways.

The headlines in the Post-Crescent extending from Feb. 15 to Nov. 18 read something like this:

Feb. 15-First Milk Strike Starts. Feb. 18-2.500 Farmers, In Mass Meeting, Vote to Join Strike. Feb. 20—First Milk Dumped on County

Feb. 22-Milk Strike "Armistice" De-

Oct. 31-Milk Trucks Halted Here. Nov. 6-Emergency Milk Plan Agreed

Nov. 10-Dairies Terminate Milk Agreement.

Nov. 11-500 Farmers Organize Protective League: Continue to Strike. Nov. 18-Strike Terminated.

The Milk Strike started out as a voluntary agreement among farmers to withhold their milk from the market until the price went up. But not all the farmers had joined in this agreement and soon those who had agreed found it was useless to dump their milk while their neighbors were carrying theirs to market. There was a temptation for those who had joined the strike to drop out. But the leaders the highways stopping all trucks carrying milk and dumping the valuable farm product out on the pavement.

Then there was resistance and violence but the patrol succeeded in a large degree in stopping most of the milk. But even that did not help much. In the end, the farmers desiring to market their milk moved out onto the highways, cleared away the barricades and ousted the weary and somewhat reluctant pickets as the strike ended. There is no thought here of predicting the outcome of the present strike which for the moment does not relate to dairy products. The National Farmers Organization, which is directing the present strike, has proposed that farmers withhold beef, hogs, lambs and grain from the market. These products are not perishable and can be held for considerable time without loss other than the expense of holding. The fact that they are not perishable may be a weakness in this strike. James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers Union. points to this when he says that "Eventually the farmers' products-even if withheld for higher prices-must go to market, and when they do the farmer is in the soup just as before."

That probably is the greatest weakness of the present strike. The goods withheld from market remain on the farms and are an influence on the price in the future. They have the same influence on the price that the products stored by the government have. The government program of storing farm products apparently is not worked out to the satisfaction of the Midwest farmers and they are, through this strike, attempting to join the government in a huge withholding and storing program. The possibility of their action seriously affecting the market has been questioned by a number of experts in the field. But a real obstacle to success appears to be that mentioned by Patton of the Farmers Union. No matter how long the strike goes on, when it is over there will be a huge backlog of farm produce ready for the market and that can scarcely fail to influence the price adversely.

Blue and Yellow Cars

could not afford to stand for any such thing as that and soon they were patrolling

The motorist who is interested in safety should select either a blue or a yellow car. In fact, the American Medical Association suggests that a two-toned blue and vellow automobile would be the safest combination.

Studies made at the University of California show that the color of an approaching automobile definitely influences a driver's judgment of how far away it is, according to Today's Health magazine published by AMA. From a distance of 200 feet, objects of some colors appear to be six feet closer than objects of other colors and the investigators point out that for average conditions an error of six feet in judging distance could mean the difference between a serious accident or no

After testing various colors on a total of 164 subjects it was determined that blue and yellow made distant colors seem closest, under both daytime and nightlime conditions. Blue was the safest color in daylight and fog and yellow, the safest at night. Grey made the objects seem farthest away and was therefore considered the poorest color for an automobile.

Looking Gloomily Ahead

The attempted assassination of President Charles De Gaulle of France points up some problems that lie ahead for a lot of countries even if their leaders avoid the assassin's bullets. The undisputed rulers of several nations, either through the restrictions of government or their own personal dominance, are getting old.

Besides France, West Germany, Spain, Nationalist China, Red China and India have regimes that are largely influenced by one man. In many, this influence has been dominant for more than a decade but in none will the leader retain his control or influence for many more years because of the passing of time.

The changes in several areas may be drastic or at least appear to be. There has been considerable talk and apparently preparation for a restoration of the monarchy in Spain once Franco leaves the picture, but there may be violent opposition to this course both within the Falangist party and among any supporters left of the old republic. The backing of the Roman Catholic Church may help the restoration but Spain, like many European countries, also is strangely anti-clerical.

Red China apparently has groomed at least two men to take over after Mao Tse-Tung dies or retires. Communism certainly won't disappear with Mao but the direction of Communism may be determined by the next regime. Will it continue in the extreme ideological and collective aim as at present or will it move toward the more moderate policies of the Soviet Union? And which policy is more likely to maintain Communism as a philosophy in China?

On Taiwan, Chiang Kai-Shek has remained in control. His demise may mean more efforts to negotiate with the Red Chinese or possibly a more belligerent effort to retake the homeland-and embroil the United States-if a younger, more vigorous man takes over.

There seems to be no one at present to succeed Nehru. His successor could be someone who would attempt to maintain the present uneasy balance between East and West, a leader who would turn more definitely to democracy in foreign policies as well as at home, or someone of Krishna Menon's ilk, unpredictable except that he would lean to the left.

Despite West Germany's tremendous strides toward representative and responsible government. Chancellor Adenauer has provided the sort of father figure of authority some students claim the Germans need. When Der Alte leaves, will the West Germans he prepared to follow government leaders with the same somewhat mystic attachment they have had for

And in France there is the vast split between most Frenchmen and the still active Secret Army as well as the myriad of French political parties, both far right, far left and in varying degrees of the middle, ready to dicker, bargain, trade and harangue in their efforts to gain or control power.

The situations in these countries, different as they are from each other, also indicate the still greater difference from the governments of the United States and the United Kingdom. Within the last two decades both America and England have been government dominated by one man-Churchill and Roosevelt—but when they left the basic government policies did not really change even in England where a socialist regime took over. Nor, and perhaps just as important, was there ever any serious or widespread fear that everything would topple.

The men who succeed DeGaulle, Adenauer, Mao Tse-Tung, Chiang Kai-Shek, Franco and Nehru will determine to a large extent both domestic and foreign policies of those lands. But their very demise will have great bearing upon the stability of those nations.

Ohio's Sen. Stephen M. Young Takes No Criticism From Anyone

BY JAMES McCARTNEY Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON - Sen. Stephen M. Young (D-Ohio) not long ago replied to a letter from a constituent with a letter that read as follows:

"Dear Sir:

- "Don't give me any more of your unsolicited advice. I know it costs nothing, but that's exactly what it's worth."

He's Outspoken

Sen. Young, as you can see, likes to say what he thinks as briefly and as pungently as possible. Verbally, he's the bad boy of the Senate.

In the Senate the plain-spoken phrase is not only unheard of it's practically unthinkable.

As nearly as anyone in town can recall it's never been tried before in writing to constituents, at least with the zest and verve that Sen. Young applies

Student Group Has Long History in Cuba's Fight for Freedom

BY DOM BONAFEDE

MIAMI - From a secret hiding place in Cuba, Alberto Muller typed a 10-page letter to President Kennedy one February night in 1961.

"In the long history of the world," Muller began, "only a few generations have been granted the role of defending their liberty in its hours of greatest danger."

Muller, then only 23 and a rephew of Roman Catholic Archbishop Alfredo Muller of Havana, was already famous as a counter-revolutionary leader.

He first gained attention in August, 1960, when he thumbed his nose at Fidel Castro and led a band of anti-Communist students in a demonstration against Soviet Foreign Minister Anastia Mikoyan.

Tore Down Wreath

The Soviet emissary had placed a hammer and sickle wreath at the statue of Cuban patriot Jose Marti in Havana's central park. This affront was too much for Muller and his companions, who crashed the police cordon and tried to tear it down.

They were overpowered and arrested, but the incident marked Muller as a young man to be reckoned with and launched. his reputation for courage.

BY MIKE RATHET

Caught in a game of catch-up on a seemingly endless treadmill, the San Francisco Giants have spent 54 consecutive days trying to overhaul the National League leading Los Angeles Dodgers and today entered the last month of the baseball season still 212 lengths behind.

The second-place Giants wound up a successful August campaign1 Friday night with a big bash against third-place Cincinnati, using the hot bat of last-minute substitute Willie McCovey and the five-hit pitching of Billy Pierce for a 10-2 triumph.

McCovey, getting the call over Harvey Kuenn just before game, single and sacrifice fly as the Giants handed the Reds their fifth defeat in six games. That left the defending champions 612 games back with less than 30 games re-

But the Giants, who've been in second place since July 8 and: wound up playing 643 ball during August, were unable to gain ground on the Dodgers. The league leaders lashed out 19 hits for an 8-3 triumph over Milwaukee while relief specialist Ed Roebuck again choked off the opposi-

Attic Theatre's Charles Velte's Ability Result of Much Hard Work

BY JINGO

The reason the "bolt from the blue" success story continues to be believed by may be the lack of knowledge by the public of the lucky star before the bolt strikes.

There are some, of course, who know the real story - those close to the so-called lucky performer - and they aren't taken in by the "bolt from the blue" stories. In the last Attic Theater production there was an actor who, quite possibly, could be the hero of a "bolt from the blue" story some time in the future. Those who saw the show and heard Charles Velte sing will be in position to say, "I told you so." But there is much more to the story of Charles Velte, even this early in the development of that possible, dramatic success in the future.

The first few installments of the Velte story have come to Jingo's attention, it has much of the Bruce and Spider flavor of a classic and the Fox Cities community of friends of Velte might like to get in on the ground floor to help with their good thoughts.

Velte's moving force for some nine years has been the desire to sing professionally in opera. It is a high ambition and one not easily achieved.

Forms Case He missed on a Rotary Fellowship application for overseas study and application for overseas study and had equal lack of success in the For Mason Chicagoland Music Festival. In 55 he joined the Army for two years and failed to boost his stage

He enrolled at the University of Wisconsin in 1957 and received a master of music degree, but failed on another Rotary fellowship and staved at the UW with an assistantship in opera appreciation while studying voice and opera courses.

The summers of '60 and '61 found Velte at Aspen, Colo., studying voice and repertoire. Signs at the UW seemed to point to a

Association Says NFO Contract Would Break Federal Law

ELLSWORTH, Wis. (AP)-The Ellsworth Cooperative Creamery; Association has turned down a demand of the National Farmers in milk prices.

which has 750 farm members and live service skills. violate federal anti-trust . The co-op operates in Pierce and other counties in northwestern Wisconsin.

Roland Waters, NFO organizer, made the contract demand on Aug. 23 after claiming to have signed up 137 of the co-op's members.

$2.50 More

Carpenter said Waters demanded that the co-op sign up to pay from $5.50 to $6.50 per hundredweight for various types of milk. Carpenter added that this is about $2.50 more than now is being paid producers in the Ellsworth area.

The co-op head said granting the price rise would be disastrous, adding that if the 137 co-op members reported in NFO should withhold their milk deliveries, it possibly could mean a shutdown of the plant with resulting losses to all farmer members.

The Ellsworth firm markets about half its milk as Grade A fluid on the Minneapolis-St. Paul market and sells the balance at Eau Claire for cheese and other processing.

Carpenter said attorneys with whom he met in St. Paul had advised him the contract would violate federal law. ## Mexican Court Voids Marriage Of Miss Loren from a bigamy trial in Italy.

Attorney Mario Luzzati said in ence his government will study

Milan he had received word that a the proposal for continued subcourt at Juarez had declared the committee meetings. marriage was nonexistent-that Miss Loren and Ponti had never been married.

The pair had asked for the nullification of their marriage because of Italian law, not because of romantic difficulties. Two months ago, an investigat-Ing judge in Rome, acting as a one-man grand jury, ordered Miss Loren and Penti to stand trial. Ponti has a Mexican divorce from his first wife, but Roman Catholic Italy does not recognize divorce. He was charged with bigamy. Miss Loren, who had never married before, was charged with concurrence in bigamy. Legal sources said the charges may be dropped as a result of the Mexican court action.

Ponti, 46, and Miss Loren, 27 were married by proxy in Juarez in September 1957, three years after Ponti obtained a Mexican divorce from his first wife, Giuliana

Suspected Smallpox Probably Chickenpox

NEW YORK (AP)-Two persons suspected to have smallpox causing a quarantine of 200 persons at Idlewild Airport early Friday, were diagnosed later as "most likely" having chickenpox.

The new diagnosis, by U.S. Public Health Service officials, was reported by Dr. Stanley Goldstein, night supervisor at Bellevue Hospital, a few minutes after the two persons arrived there.

The 200 at Idlewild were quarantined for periods up to five hours during investigation of the suspected smallpox cases. Goldstein said the Public Health Service officials gave him the working diagnosis of likely chickenpox while a Philadelphia woman and her three children-two of them with heavy rashes—were en route from the airport to the hospi-
